

A variety of voices and opinions being aired in the press and media is essential to a true democracy. We need to ensure that this variety remain a reality in today's America.